

SAY PATROLMEN BEAT UP NEGRO

Case Presented to Grand Jury Monday to Probe

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 5.—Grand jurors were urged this morning to investigate the case of David Garland, a negro porter, who was severely beaten about 5 o'clock Sunday morning by two plain clothes men of the Beaumont police department.

Judge E. B. O'Brien, in his capacity of the grand jury, urged that some action be taken at once if the case merited an indictment.

Garland, who is a janitor at the post office, was on his way to work early Sunday morning. While walking on Main street, he was ordered to halt by two men. He believed them to be Jacks and started to run. Three shots were fired at the negro, but all missed him.

He started in a run toward the post office building where he works, and the patrolmen on the beat there joined in the chase and followed him into the post office. He is charged with striking the negro over the head with a billy, and when the plain clothes men arrived, they too, are alleged to have struck the man several times and then threw him down the post office steps. It was necessary to take the negro to Hotel Dix for treatment in an ambulance.

Postmaster E. A. Seaton declared this morning that in addition to the assault, it was a violation of the law for anyone to invade the post office building as the officers had done.

An investigation this morning was to the effect that the officers were mistaken in the identity of the negro. He has been employed at the post office for almost a year and has been coming to work at the same time each morning.

DONT SPOON WITH LAWYERS, JUDGE WARNS

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 5.—"Don't get too cozy with the lawyers," was the advice postmaster in the 55th district court, given Monday morning.

The judge, called and jury charged, particularly emphasized being laid on the conduct of the jurors while cases were being tried.

Judge O'Brien declared that the court had always been lenient on jurors, allowing them to go home at night, although they could be kept at the court house on civil cases. He threatened to put jurors under strict regulations for a period of six months, however, if they did not conduct themselves with such discretion that attorneys could appeal cases on errors in their conduct.

FAIR WOMAN GAMBLER FOUND ON BIG RAID

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 5.—A pretty young woman was arrested here Sunday afternoon, charged with gambling. Officers invaded a rooming house where they believed a gambling game to be in progress, and in stead of finding only men, they found a young lady as well.

NORTHERN NEGRESS WANTED HIDE WITH WHITES

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 5.—Among offenders answering charges in city corporation court Monday morning was a negro woman who insisted on riding in the part of the street car reserved for white persons. She had received a ticket to Beaumont from the north where she was in the habit of riding where she chose and no amount of persuasion on the part of the conductor could induce her to move. Officers were called, she was taken from the car, and charges preferred against her.

Pimples

BLOOD impurities are pumped by the heart into the face. That is what causes that grainy appearance, that muddiness, sallowness, pimples, blackheads, acne, red spots, and that impossible "something" which no face cream, massage, or face powder can cover up or beautify! The foundation for a beautiful skin simply is not there, and no face treatment can give it to you. But increase your red-blood-cells, and quickly the ruby tint of purity begins to glow in the cheeks, complexion becomes rosy-like and immaculate. Try it. It will do it every time. S. S. S. builds the red-blood-cells you need for a beautiful complexion. Begin using S. S. S. at once, and give yourself what you have been working for, for years.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Furniture Dealers Plan Big Show in Better Homes Week

Many Valuable Gifts To Be Given Citizens Here During Educational Week

Prizes to be given away by local furniture dealers during the "Better Homes Week" which starts in Port Arthur May 11 and extends to May 15, are some of the most valuable gifts to be awarded in any campaign held in the city.

A close inspection of the gifts reveals a list of valuable items that should help to outfit any home, they declare.

The Boone Kitchen cabinet, to be given by Scott, Waller, is a beautiful prize, and can be placed in use in the privacy of homes whether new or old.

A floor lamp, which is being offered by Jones O'Neal, is of the ideal type, suited to any living or bedroom.

The fibre chaise longue, which the Gulf Furniture company is awarding, is just as Manager Hill of the Gulf Furniture company remarked a few days ago: "It's the real thing for a gift, and ought to suit anybody."

A gift for either

Vaughan-Pace Furniture company suggested the cedar chest gift as one that can be used "either by men or women," and especially by the young women.

A refrigerator, being awarded by Crowell-Gordon Furniture company, and the stove and warming closet which will be given away by Williams Furniture company, are both attractive presents, and will show the interest these enterprising merchants have in the betterment of Port Arthur homes.

The furniture houses of this city, which have entered the educational campaign for "Better Homes Week," have in mind the teaching of how to purchase correct furniture to make the correct home both an attractive and a beautiful home. Management of the Phoenix company, who has taken a big interest in the campaign, had this idea in mind when one of the new Sealy mattresses was placed on the prize list as the offering of that organization in the week.

Home Needs Considered

The mattress is a thing of comfort, and the correct home must be comfortable.

Furniture dealers are going to considerable expense to "Put Better Homes Week over the top bigger in Port Arthur than it has ever been put across elsewhere." And likewise, they are going to considerable trouble, turning their own valuable time from business to teach Port Arthurans not only what to buy, but how to buy the most economical way and still get the greatest benefit.

The week will bring to Port Arthur an unusual array of beautiful, attractive, durable furnishings and furniture, and the purchasers will find not only wonderful to look at, but easy to buy.

PASTOR DEFENDS FLAPPER GENUS

Young Folk Are Greatest Workers Says Onderdonk

"I'm not a pessimist, even if I do wear both suspenders and a belt," declared Rev. F. S. Onderdonk in defense of flappers and jelly-beans at the First M. E. Church, Sunday night.

The fourteen-day revival to be conducted at the First Methodist church started Sunday morning with the largest attendance that church has ever had, according to church officials, and Evangelist Onderdonk delivered strong sermons both morning and evening.

There was a good attendance of young people Sunday night, and the preacher was not long in making friends with them. He stated that in his youth the young people—when they did attend church—took seats in the back of the house and made so much noise that it was almost impossible to hear the preacher, but that in the present day some of the greatest workers of the church are young people. He acknowledged the fact that there are a few "hair-brained flappers and jelly-beans" but that they are in the minority. He said there are many thoughtful boys and girls—as they were years ago—but in most cases these only needed a good strong application of the switch to effect a complete cure.

There will be services each morning at 10 o'clock and nights at 8.

"THE HUNCHBACK"

Tuesday, Port Arthur will have its first opportunity of seeing "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the massive production which swept into overnight fame in New York, when it comes to the Peoples theatre.

Advance accounts declare the film has all the ingredients of a great success—a story that is internationally famous, that is replete with action, albeit somewhat gruesome, the greatest of character stars in Lon Chaney, excellent supporting cast, studio facilities and unlimited funds.

Lon Chaney, admittedly the finest interpreter of unusual character roles on either stage or screen, plays the stellar part of "Quasimodo," with Ernest Torrence as "Clopin," the underworld king, and Patsy Ruth Miller as "Esmeralda." Seventy-two other noted performers have featured parts, while two hundred players interpret smaller roles with the mob scenes numbering slightly in excess of 3,500 persons.

Some idea of the immensity of the production can be obtained when it is stated that the entire Cathedral of Notre Dame was reconstructed at Universal City, as well as eight blocks of Parisian streets and houses of the time of Louis XI. The total cost, was a little less than $1,500,000.

GARDEN AIRDOME
"The Little Lost Sister," a story of a girl's quest in the large cities, was presented by the Ferguson Brothers at the Airdome last night before a large and enthusiastic audience.

The play was in four acts, with appropriate settings painted by Mr. Simms, and the lighting was effective. Edward Ferguson as Harry Bond, Albert Ferguson as the amateur detective, Clyde Armstrong as the Irish politician, Miss Gertrude Wood in the title role and Miss Violet Whitworth as the reformer did effective work. Others in the cast were Miss Madge Joyce, Miss Simms, Cash Tomlinson, Cole Keboe.

"The Love Bandit," a romance of the big forests, will be offered the last half of the week.

England's recent earthquake were the first recorded there in nearly eight years.

$36,400 SPENT BY PRECINCT 2

Figures to Treasurer Cover Three Months Period

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 5.—A total of $36,410.15 was spent in precinct 2 in the last three months, according to a financial report compiled by County Treasurer H. L. Williams.

Although this precinct, of which Charles Hughes is commissioner and which includes Port Arthur, spent the most money of any in the county, they still have the largest amount of money left in their treasury.

Precinct one spent $35,309.20 and has $34,555.27 left. Precinct 2 spent $30,410.15 and has $47,214.68 left in the treasury. There was only $7,639.49 expended in precinct 3, leaving a balance of $14,890.00, and $25,332.22 spent in precinct 4, and $29,346.66 left in the treasury.

There are $41,267.55 in the general fund of the county. During the past quarter bonds to the amount of $75,700 were retired. In the quarter previous, bonds retired amounted to about $67,000. The county has paid out $7,067.00 for jurors fees also during the past three months.

A complete report showing the amount of money in each department and the amount on hand will be offered to commissioners court in May, and will show that the financial status of Jefferson county is exceptionally good.

C. A. Bolton, for 10 years connected with Crowell-Gifford in an executive capacity, will leave Port Arthur this week to take a position with J. B. Ivey and company, furniture dealers at Charlotte, North Carolina.

Bolton will be buyer and sales manager for the concern to which he is leaving. "I have one big regret in leaving Port Arthur and that is I am leaving some of the best people in the world and one of the best cities," Bolton said this morning in verifying the report that he is leaving.

Bolton said he would probably leave for his new work some time this week.

CHILD'S HEALTH DAY AWAKENS ALL TO RECOGNITION OF RIGHT TO HEALTH

Child Health day is in May this year. A certain appropriateness in that, for at this festival time when children's voices are raised in happiness we can do well to think on what makes them happy. The basis of it is health—not just tolerable health, but buoyancy of spirit which comes from good care, cleanliness, good food and understanding. Every day is May day to the healthy child when one kicks down his child's world.

But, appropriateness aside, is there real need for a day on which to emphasize child health? Well, here are the facts: Two hundred thousand children in the United States die before they reach the age of 1 year. Physical examination of 22,000,000 children reveals that there is something wrong with over half of them, often something that is preventable. Five million have defective eyes; a million are defective in hearing; a million have active tuberculosis; 250,000 have organic heart trouble; from three to five million are underfed. The United States, in spite of its material progress, is fifth among the nations in saving child life and sixteenth in preserving the lives of the mothers who bring our children into the world.

Can you read those figures and doubt that we need a Child Health day? Yes, we need that and more; we need a child health movement the year around—a movement that will grow until these figures can no longer shame us down.

FATE OF SIR RICHARD

Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires of New Foundland must have been a greedy statesman. He has been arrested on a charge of the larceny of twenty thousand dollars of public funds, his government has been overthrown and his political party has been dismantled. Was it delivered to him by mail, by messenger or via the suitcase route? Albert B. Fall received his in a suitcase. Wherein does the New Foundland custom differ from the American custom?

GRAND OLD TEXAS

In 1550 the value of all property in Texas was $52,740,000. In 1880 the value of all property was $23,000,000. In 1922 the estimated value of all property, as announced by the Federal Bureau of the Census, was $9,550,888,000. It is a big jump in 74 years from $52,740,000 to nearly ten billion dollars. In 1930 Texas should lead all the states in the American union in point of population and wealth.

OBREGON, THE MASTER

President Obregon has crushed the bandit rebellion with all its oily trimmings in Aztec republic. General Juan Alonzo and General Alastra and their five hundred officers and men are good bandits now. All were captured, all were court martialed and all were shot. A bandit who fights for plunder, a mercenary who fights for loot, isn't a soldier and isn't entitled to mercy. President Obregon is building a stable government for Mexico.

QUEEN MARY ON THE RACK

Queen Mary of Great Britain has been placed on the rack by the English prohibitionists. They say that there are large wine cellars in Queen Mary's million dollar doll house, that these wine cellars contain champagne, whiskey and other alcoholic beverages which no self-respecting doll would drink or even have in the house. This million dollar doll house is a replica of a fine old English home, wine cellars and all. Some day the British press are going to take all the joy out of living for the gentry of the "tight little isle." They appear to be on the way.

PEAK OF BUILDING THIS YEAR

According to New York experts, the American building boom which exceeded all records in 1923, will reach the peak of building this year and then its decline will be gradual. This is the prediction of builders and financiers. Who knows?

The Angle Worm
By George S. Chappell
It was a little angle worm:
The rain had washed him out.
I picked him up and watched him squirm:
And twist himself about.

"O little angle worm," I said,
"What makes you wiggle so?
Is it some pain of heart or head,
Or some more subtle woe?"

"It is, it is," he loudly cried,
And withered upon my hand.
"Tis what?" I tenderly replied;
"I do not understand."

"To have you call the angle worm,
Tis that my heart un-ner-ers.
Is there not some more fitting term
For one who's naught but curves?"

"For curves are beautiful to see,
And all admit they are so true.
But I through life am doomed to be Described as angular."

"Tis that which clouds my daily sky
And makes my poor heart burn,
And craves me, I swear, till I
Don't know which way to turn."

Ques.—A plumber can do a piece of work in four days (exclusive of time out to go back to the shop for more tools, working eight hours a day. Supposing that he works twice, hours a day, how long would it take him?

Ans.—Don't suppose any such thing. Plumbers never work over eight hours a day.

THE VALUE OF YOUR HOME

IS INCREASED BY YOUR OWN EFFORTS

A home owner can increase the cash value of his home greatly by doing a few spare hours to his property.

When a man owns his own home he is naturally interested in making it a better place to live. He wants it a little more homelike; so he spends part of his vacation and many odd moments each day at such "homey" tasks as repairing the door-step, painting the house, trimming the trees or planting a bit of shrubbery.

By doing these things, he not only builds a better home for his family, but the cash value of the property is materially increased, which makes the property a better investment. An improvement that costs but $300 often adds $1,000 to the value of a home.

Every man has a certain amount of spare time each day, but few men will devote it to the improvement of the landlady's property.

TEXAS GUARANTY FUND SYSTEM TO BE COPIED

AUSTIN, Texas, May 5.—A bill will be introduced in congress to establish a guaranty fund system for national banks similar to the Texas state bank fund. Banking Commissioner J. L. Chapman was informed Friday by a congressman who asked him for data on the Texas guaranty fund plan.

The congressman is from another state than Texas. His name was withheld, pending introduction of his proposed national law. Commissioner Chapman considered that the proposed national adoption of the Texas plan was a distinct commendation of the guaranty fund system.

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

by RUDY AYRES

BEGIN HERE TODAY
The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Bretherton, writes an unhappy girl to her mother, was a disaster. Nigel is killed and Dolly marries an old sweetheart, Robert Durham. Dolly and Robert sell for America and word comes of the sinking of their ship. When Nigel's brother, David, comes to see Nigel's widow, Mary, is ashamed to tell him of Dolly's marriage. David mistakes Mary for his brother's wife and she comes to live at Red Grange with him and his aunt. David and his aunt welcome Mary when she comes to Red Grange. David asks Mary if she believes in ghosts and tells her that Red Grange is haunted.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"Red Grange is haunted, do you mean?"
"Yes; we are quite proud of our ghost, aren't we, Aunt Florence? I haven't seen it myself, but a good many of our ancestors have, and each visitation is chronicled most carefully in an old book. I will show it to you tomorrow. You are not afraid of ghosts?"
Mary laughed.
"I don't believe in them, of course. Do you?"
He hesitated.
"I'm not sure—but I rather believe I do."

David said Miss Varney reprovingly.
He looked across at her.
"Well, I believe I do; in our particular ghost, at any rate. They say she is a very charming person."

"A woman, then," said Mary.
"Yes; a lady in gray. As I say, I've never seen her, but she is supposed to appear at stated times, and walk the corridors upstairs. I don't say you're noticed that most of them are oak-paneled?"

"Yes."
"Well, there is supposed to be a secret door in one panel leading to an old undecorated passage—that's the story, anyway. Most old houses have some such story. I wonder Nigel didn't tell you. He and I used to spend days when we were youngsters, trying to find out where it was. I should think there's hardly an inch of paneling we haven't tapped and tried to coax into opening, but we never found anything, and I dare say it's only a story."

"Mary will be dreaming if you tell her any more," Miss Varney objected.
David looked at the girl.
"Will you? I'm sorry. I didn't think you'd be so impractical."

"I'm not. I think it's actually interesting. Who else has the last apartment this gray lady?"
David hesitated. He knit his brows.

"I can't quite remember, but it's some years ago—long before my time. The story runs that she is only seen when some disaster or disgrace is threatening the family. She's quite a kindly soul, evidently," he added laughing. "And means quite well."

They all laughed and the conversation was changed.
CHAPTER XXIII
The Family Reunion

David went to his room to write letters after dinner, and Mary and Miss Varney sat together in the drawing-room.

"Doesn't Mr. Bretherton ever sit with us—with you, I mean?" Mary asked involuntarily.

Miss Varney looked up from her crochet.
"Oh, yes; sometimes, my dear. But he's not at all strong. You know, in fact, at one time we never thought he would live to grow up. He's much better now, but he has to be careful. I like him to rest as much as possible. But we shall see quite a lot of him, and you'll have very much when you know him better."

"I like him now," said Mary impulsively.
Miss Varney looked pleased; she was never tired of listening to praise of her idol.

"He's a wonderful man—wonderful," she said, with quiet enthusiasm. "He doesn't make many friends, and he doesn't make them easily; but once he likes a person, he'd do anything for him."

"I am sure he would."
"He's just like his grandfather in some respects," Miss Varney went on, with evident enjoyment. "He's the straightest man I know, but once you make an enemy of him—" She looked up at Mary with a sort of pride. "The Brethertons never forgive!" she said emphatically.

"I don't think that's very nice of them," said Mary, with a nervous little smile. "They might need forgiveness for something themselves some day."

Miss Varney unwound some more cotton from the ball on her lap.
"It's a family trait, my dear; I can't explain it in any other way. Of course, I know we are all taught to forgive our enemies, but not many of us do so. I am afraid. Just now David was speaking of the family ghost, as he calls it, but he didn't tell you about the last time it appeared, and why it is supposed to have appeared, did he?"

"No."
"It was in his grandfather's time. David's father was a young man then, and his brother Ralph—you've heard Nigel speak of his Uncle Ralph, of course?"

"No."
Miss Varney looked surprised.
"Haven't you? I wonder he didn't tell you about him. He was the elder than David's father, and he got into some trouble here at home and went off abroad. Nothing was heard of him for years, until one day news of his death was sent to his father. He'd died somewhere in America, and that apparently was the end of him, and everyone naturally looked upon David and Nigel's father as heirs."

"I suppose it must have been about six months later," she went on, "that a woman arrived at the Red Grange."

"That was November. I wasn't here, of course, but I've heard the story told so often I almost seem to have been there myself. Nigel's mother had a child with her, a boy of two years, and she said she was Ralph Bretherton's wife, and that the boy was his son. Nobody had ever heard of his being married, but she persuaded his father into believing her. She had papers and certificates, and goodness alone know what, and she told him a very plausible story of how she met him, and what their life had been, and how he died."

"Well, to cut a long story short, she was received here as Ralph Bretherton's widow, and the child acknowledged as his son, and she followed her way. I believe, and, judging from his portrait—there's one in the gallery—he was a very pretty boy, but not a bit like a Bretherton. He and his mother stayed here for about two months, living in luxury, before they were found out. David's grandfather took a great fancy to the child, and thought nothing too good for them."

"Then one night the Gray Lady was seen; no fewer than three people saw her, and all on separate occasions. It was a warning, so everyone said, that some disaster was falling on the family. And sure enough it was. The next day the very day someone sent an anonymous letter to the head of the house—David's grandfather—and warned him that the woman he was sheltering as his son's wife was an impostor. But I don't remember the details, but it proved to be true enough. She had only known Ralph Bretherton very slightly, and the whole thing was a put-up scheme to get the money and estates for the boy."

CHAPTER XXIV
The Bretherton Character
Mary had listened breathlessly. "And what happened to them?"
Miss Varney shook her head.

"This is the most dreadful part of the story, and the very next day someone sent an anonymous letter to the head of the house—David's grandfather—and warned him that the woman he was sheltering as his son's wife was an impostor. But I don't remember the details, but it proved to be true enough. She had only known Ralph Bretherton very slightly, and the whole thing was a put-up scheme to get the money and estates for the boy."

"In the morning some of the villagers found them in a snowdrift by the roadside. The wife, her boy was dead, and her mother—the shock her head—she died soon afterwards."

"How cruel—how wickedly cruel!" Mary's voice was angry and indignant. "Wasn't he punished? It was murder!" she repeated vehemently.

Miss Varney looked a little shocked. "There was a terrible scandal, of course, but—well, when you get a rich and powerful man, my dear, you can hush things up, you know, and the whole truth never came out. But it showed that side of the Bretherton character—relentless, remorseless."

"And you mean—what mean that David would be like that?" asked Mary slowly.

"Oh, my dear, how can I tell? I only know that he is a Bretherton to the backbone."

Mary left her chair and walked over to the fire. She dropped on her knees, holding her hands to the warmth of its blaze. She was shivering a little.

"I suppose if anyone deceived him, the result would be hard to say, but he would be quite capable of behaving in the way his grandfather did. Is that what you mean?"
Miss Varney looked distressed.
"I'm afraid I am giving you a wrong impression of him, Mary. It's so unlikely that anything ever will happen to rouse him sufficiently, that the ordinary way he never gets up at all. Why, even when we heard that Nigel had been killed, you would hardly have thought David cared, the way he took it."

Mary's face flamed.

"It seems that nobody loved him but me!" she said bitterly. Then, suddenly, she remembered. "Oh, I didn't know! I forgive you; I didn't mean that."

Miss Varney took the hand she extended.

CHINA HUMAN HAIR SUPPLY GETS BIGGER

By United Press.

GAULSTON, Texas, May 5.—At the rate of one pound of hair for each Chinese hair, it would take a Chinese city with twice the population of Gaulston to supply the 90,000 pounds of human hair which were imported into Gaulston during the month of February, according to statistics for the month at the United States customs house.

At 20 cents a pound the total import value of the human hair received at this port was $2,500. The retail value of the hair was not given in the report from the customs house, nor were the number of Chinamen who were needed to supply this huge quantity of hair.

40,000 MINERS TO END STRIKE MONDAY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 5.—Forty thousand striking coal miners in the southwest will return to work Monday morning, a joint committee of mine union officials and operators announced here tonight. Old wage scale agreements which expired April 1, are reported to have been renewed.

The decision ends three weeks of negotiations, fraught with dissension. But mine officials and operators declined to discuss the decision, other than to state the strike was at an end.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

They jumped up on the work bench and began to sew.

The next place Mister Muggs took the Twins in Once-Upon-a-Time Land was to see the Poor Clobber.

Although indeed he was not poor now, he was very, very rich and needed to clobber no longer for a living.

However, riches had not spoiled him, and he was out in the yard under a tree smoking his old pipe and blowing great puffs of smoke into the air.

"We came to see you and your good wife," said Mister Muggs when he had parked the little car outside the gate. "May we come in?"

"Of course, of course!" said the kindly clobber. "Come right in and I'll call Sally and we can have a party. I think she has just made some fresh cookies and the Jersey cows are rich milk."

After Nancy had had six cookies and Nick eight, the clobber told his story.

"We are very, very poor," he said. "Somehow or other everything had gone wrong. Sometimes I was sick, sometimes my wife was sick, and sometimes both of us together. Our savings in the teapot on the mantelpiece got less and less and less and finally disappeared completely."

"Well, at last there was only enough leather left for one pair of shoes. Late one night I cut them out and then went to bed so I could get up early in the morning and finish the work."

"The next morning when I went into my shop, there lay the shoes on my bench all finished to the last stitch, and sewed on so neatly that I got twice the price for them I usually did."

"I lost no time in buying enough leather for two pairs of shoes. Next morning there they were, ready to be put on. Although I had done nothing but cut them out."

"This went on for many nights, and each night the mysterious visitor sewing on twice as many shoes as he had the night before, I became the richest man in town."

"My wife and I decided to watch, so one night we hid behind the door, and at 12 o'clock two ragged little men came, no bigger than my hand. They jumped up on the work bench and began to sew. They must have been fairies, for never have I seen shoes made so fast. A stitch and a snap, and they were done."

"We said to ourselves, 'Tid for tid. The little fellows need clothes. Perhaps that is what they are working for.' So next day my wife made two tiny suits and knitted two tiny jackets and caps and laid them beside the leather."

"Then we watched again. The little men came and when they saw the new clothes they shouted for joy. They put the things on and disappeared. We have never seen them since."

"But a queer thing happened. I had bought some green leather—enough for two pairs of shoes. It disappeared with them."

"They must have been magic shoes and given them to the Fairy Queen," cried Nancy. "And she gave them to us."

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

The Roman Circus

Have you ever been to a circus? Very likely you have been more than once. During my boyhood the circus was one of the great events of the year, which I looked forward to each year, and even now I get great fun watching the clowns and acrobats, the trained animals and the chariot races.

You will perhaps be surprised to hear that we owe most of the ideas of a circus to the ancient Romans.

The biggest circus grounds of Rome were in a valley between two of the city's famous hills. All around a large central space were rows of seats. Those nearer the front were built of stone. The rest of the seats were made of wood. They were often filthy, and broke under the weight of the audience, leading to loss of life.

Circuses were free. The money to rug them was often given by generals who had fought in foreign lands and taken wealth away from people who were beaten. At one time, the number of seats around the circus ground was about one hundred and eighty-five thousand!

The chariot races were the most popular events on the program. Daily, which I looked forward to each year, men in chariots fairly flew around the race course.

In very early days, there were two parties who cheered the chariot races. These called themselves the Whites and the Reds.

Later on, there were four parties. Besides the Whites and Reds, there were the Greens and Blues. This did not work so very well. The Whites and the Reds dropped out, leaving the field to the Greens and Blues.

The chariot was owned by rich men; but they hired "common folk" to do the driving; or else sent their slaves to the job. In certain cases skillful drivers obtained a great deal of money. In other cases, slaves were freed because they did well on the race course.

This is a scene at a Roman circus during a chariot race. Next: "Borrowing" Greek Gods.

"And I'm going to have more," declared Virginia. "I have to water these things now." And she ran in to change her dress.

Here's Virginia in a pretty blue dress and blue hose with orange trimmings. Color her hair with light orange crayon to make it look sunnier, make her cheeks pink, and then make her on lightweight cardboard and cut her out. She'll have a gardening dress tomorrow.

MISSOURI RIVER IS NEARLY OUT OF BANKS

HARMONY, Mo., May 5.—Crews of workmen battled tonight to prevent the Missouri river cutting a new channel here.

Two bridges and rich farm land valued at $2,000,000 were endangered. The river was overflowing its banks and threatening the Chicago and Alton railway right-of-way.

STATE IN CHARGE OF OKLAHOMA BANK

LOCUST GROVE, Okla., May 5.—State banking officials were in charge of the state bank here today. Failure to realize upon outstanding farm credits were largely responsible for closing the doors, it was stated. The bank was capitalized for $15,000 and deposits showed $32,000. W. A. Drury was president.

"I'll plant another row of lettuce over there," planned Virginia, as she stood looking at the plot of ground.

"God would that I should glory in anything save the cross," said the Rev. R. H. Yelder, pastor of the First Christian church, in his sermon Sunday night on the "Rugged Cross." A white cross, in which a spotlight was turned during the service, with all other things, and the cross that once was the emblem of shame is now the emblem of glory, for it symbolizes the life eternal, the cross of Christ.

"The Rugged Cross," he said, "stands for five great things, which are outlined as the 'sacrifice of God or the sin of the world.' God's larger signal, 'God's power to save,' a story of death and 'all things noble, wholesome, good, true and worth while.'"
